Industrial Park in Bethel could get first occupant

Bethel's Industrial Park—which exists so far only on paper—could get its first occupant if negotiations between town officials and Gamm officials work out. Gamm, the New Hampshire garment manufacturer with a satellite factory in Bethel, has been looking for a new home for its local operation since the Bethel factory was flooded out in each of the past two winters. The Gamm II factory is located in what had been the Bethel Mall, at Rte. 26 and Cross Street. Sources said the owners have looked at the former Locke Mills Marketplace building, in Locke Mills, as well as the former school building in Rumford Center, as well as a piece of property near the Kendall Dovel Mill. But, the sources said, the most seriously considered location is among the half-dozen lots in the planned Industrial Park, at Col. Dyke Field, on the Northwest Bethel Road.

The move to the airport would not only keep the sewing machines out of the floods, it would also permit Gamm II to expand. Presently restricted to 6,000 square feet, the company hopes to erect a building of at least 10,000 square feet at the airport. Plans also call for adding on a pressing room to the expanded building.

Newry Planning Board may get salaried clerk

The Newry selectmen, meeting Tuesday morning at the town office, received a report from Veronica Smith, Planning Board member, that Michelle Varulo had been recommended to serve as clerk for the Planning Board. It had been suggested that it might make the work of the secretary, Nancy Wynn, easier if there were someone who could sit in meetings for the purpose of taking notes for the secretary's reports. This would leave the secretary free to engage in discussion and to handle correspondence and other secretarial duties. Ms. Varulo will be asked to attend the Sept. 2 meeting of the Planning Board to discuss her employment.

Time to plan for the future

Next Tuesday night is decision time for Bethel residents. Shall the town have a site plan review ordinance to help control growth? That will be the question facing voters at next Tuesday's special town meeting, at 7 p.m., at Telstar Regional High School.

As the drafters of the plan have stated, the ordinance—if passed—will not solve all the problems associated with growth. But it should solve some. For example, any new multi-unit, commercial or industrial development, or changed use of an existing structure, will have to have sufficient parking spaces for clients and staff. Any new development, or significant change of use of an existing structure, will have to have a goodly portion of its lot left as greenspace. And there are restrictions on heights of buildings, the closeness one can build from lot lines, and the number of units per acre (in multi-unit developments).

At the two public hearings held last month, there was little public comment. Hopefully that is not a sign of little public interest. The proposed ordinance is a beginning to giving town officials some tools for controlling growth. It may be that the tools are not perfect, and, if so, the ordinance can be amended after the Planning Board gains some experience with it.

Bethel voters should turn out for the special town meeting next Tuesday, and should vote for the new ordinance.

PRINTING THE NEWEST PUBLICATION of Citizen Press—called "What's on the Tube"—pressmen in Lewiston pay close attention to the quality of the job as it comes off the press. The handy TV guide is assembled in Bethel, printed in Lewiston, and distributed throughout most of Oxford County.

STACKING THE THOUSANDS of "Tube" tabloids as they roll off the press is the job of this crew in Lewiston. Citizen Press published 15,000 copies of the TV tabloid weekly. They are distributed Thursdays to over 100 outlets in Oxford County and are available free of charge.

A note from the publisher

There's a new weekly publication on the newstands this week, and I hope you've picked up a copy. Called "What's on the Tube," the tabloid-size paper is a listing of TV programs for the cable systems serving most of Oxford County.

Of course you don't have to be a cable subscriber to use the schedules in the tabloid, but they are designed to make life easier for cable subscribers.

Those systems covered by the listings are the system for Mechanic Falls and Oxford, the system for Norway and South Paris, the system for the Bethel area—including from Newry to West Paris, and the system for the Rumford area, including Mexico, Dixfield and West Paris.

I hope readers of The Citizen will be pleased to see the new publication—which is published by The Citizen—on the newstands. You'll recall that in the reader survey we did last year, many readers wanted the TV listings in the weekly paper expanded, while just as many wanted them removed altogether. With the new publication, I hope we can satisfy those people who wanted expanded information on TV schedules as well as those who wanted none.

In a few weeks, when our readers have gotten used to picking up their weekly copy of "What's on the Tube," my plan is to remove the listings from The Citizen itself. That way, those who want more listings will have them in a separate paper, and those who want none in The Citizen should also be satisfied, I hope.

If you have any views one way or the other on this plan, please let me know. Also, I'd be interested in hearing your opinion on the new publication. Does it serve your needs? Is it more useful or less useful than the TV previews in the Sunday papers? What can we do to make it more useful?

Please note, it's a free publication. But we do want it to be the best schedule available. So please let us know any ways we can make it better.

I'd like to introduce a new member of our staff: Mike Daniels, of Greenwood, is the advertising sales representative for "The Tube," and is the driving force behind it. You'll probably see him around, either picking up ads for the publication or dropping off copies to the various stores, shops and restaurants that carry it. We're already supplying copies to over 100 establishments in Oxford County. If you don't find "What's on the Tube" in your own local store, and you'd like to have it there, let us know. We'll put it on our list.

Place a match between the arrows and read to yourself.

BRINGING A HANDFUL of Citizen Press' latest publication—"What's on the Tube"—into The Citizen office last week, advertising sales representative Mike Daniels is all smiles at the successful new publication.

As I see it . . .

Clean air needed indoors as well as outdoors

For over 15 years, the Clean Air Act has protected Americans from exposure to air pollution. Some of the worst air pollution problems have been solved, but we still have a long way to go.

As chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Environmental Protection, I am working with my colleagues to reauthorize the Clean Air Act. We are working to develop programs to address acid rain, the problems of smog, and toxic air pollutants.

While we must expand our program to control pollution of the air outdoors, there is growing evidence that contaminants also are present in the air indoors and these contaminants can pose a health threat.

Why should we be concerned about indoor air contamination? One reason is that Americans spend up to 90 percent of a day indoors. In addition recent scientific studies indicate that levels of some air contaminants of long exposure to high levels of contaminants can result in significant health risks.

The high threats of indoor air contaminants are well documented. We know the serious health problems caused by just one indoor air contaminant—radon gas. The EPA estimates that between 5,000 and 20,000 lung cancer cases each year are attributable to radon.

In addition to radon, contaminants in the indoor air include asbestos, volatile organic chemicals (such as formaldehyde, methylene chloride, and methyl ethyl ketone), pesticides, and combustion-by-products. These indoor contaminants are thought to cause several thousand cancer deaths each year and a wide range of other health effects.

Unfortunately, the original Clean Air Act is limited to control of contaminants in the air outdoors. Contaminants in the air indoors have received only limited attention under various other statutes. To correct this problem, I recently introduced legislation in the Senate to reduce the health threats posed by exposure to contaminants in the air indoors.

A primary objective of the legislation is to expand and strengthen research of indoor air contaminants. The bill provides the Environmental Protection Agency with comprehensive authority to conduct research of indoor contaminants and establishes a program to demonstrate new control technology.

Another provision of the bill provides funds to assist state governments in assessment of indoor air contamination problems and development of response programs. States could also get financial assistance to address a particular contaminant in a specific geographic area.

The bill would also require the EPA to work with other Federal agencies to focus and direct efforts to reduce indoor air contaminant concentrations.

The indoor air quality legislation complements legislation I have developed specifically addressing radon contamination problems. The radon bill, which was passed by the Senate in July, would help states such as Maine expand programs to respond to radon problems.

I will be doing everything I can over the coming months to develop legislation to improve the existing provisions of the Clean Air Act addressing outdoor air contamination. At the same time, we must every effort to assure that the air indoors is at least as safe to breathe as the air outdoors. The legislation I have introduced is a step in that direction.

—George Mitchell, U.S. Senator

SAABS ARE IDEAL FOR SERIOUS SKIERS.

Even if the toughest thing about your winter is deciding between the beach and the ski slopes, a Saab can make winter better. For instance, you don't need ice-coated roads in order to appreciate Saab's superb handling. Front-wheel drive, large 15-inch wheels and an exquisitely balanced suspension give you the same confidence and control on dry asphalt or desert tracks as they do in snow.

You don't need subzero temperatures to enjoy the sparkling performance that the Saab's two-liter, fuel-injected engine gives back in return for modest amounts of fuel. And it doesn't have to get cold enough for the electric seat heaters to turn on automatically before you enjoy the comfort of firm, orthopedically-shaped front seats.

Don't wait for things to freeze over. Test drive a Saab today.

$24,575 has already been received by the town and this final report should bring in the balance.

The Sunday River schoolhouse committee has trimmed the bushes around the building.

The selectmen discussed the possibility of moving the town offices to the other side of the building, which is no longer being leased by NOVA, in order to have a larger meeting room.

Tax bills are expected to be out by the end of this week. A 2 percent discount will be offered if paid prior to Sept. 20, and interest, at the rate of 11 percent, will be charged on all taxes not paid by Oct. 1.

Settlement possible in bankruptcy of ex-owner of Evergreen Valley

A disclosure statement and plan under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code was filed with the U.S. Bankruptcy Court, in Portland, last Thursday in the bankruptcy case of Evergreen Valley Resort, Inc., the former owner of the East Stoneham resort. The company filed for bankruptcy in 1982, leading the Finance Authority of Maine (FAME) to take over the property and then sell it—three times. It is now owned by Bob Bahre.

Richard Poulos, attorney for the bankrupt corporation, said the plan he helped put together envisions an immediate payout of $50,000 to the creditors, with smaller payouts in the future.

A hearing on the plan will be held Sept. 10, at the Kennebec County Courthouse, in Augusta.

Mr. Poulos said the bankrupt corporation owes about $250,000 to secured creditors, such as the Internal Revenue Service, FAME, and the Small Business Administration, and another $250,000 to unsecured creditors.

A second article on the warrant revises the rules for both the Planning Board and Board of Appeals, insofar as voting is concerned. The proposed change would dictate that all issues shall be decided by a majority of those present and eligible to vote and voting. This would eliminate problems that have occurred in the past. Another rule change would have terms on these boards run from July 1 to June 30.

As part of the conversion process, Bethel Savings Bank FSB converted from a federally chartered mutual savings bank to a federally chartered stock savings bank. Approximately 99 percent of the net proceeds from the offering was used by the Bethel Bancorp to purchase 100 percent of the stock of Bethel Savings Bank FSB.
The bank will continue to operate through its offices in Bethel, Rumford, Harrison, and South Paris, as a wholly owned subsidiary of Bethel Bancorp.
Education to SAD #44 to be used for teachers and administrators certification program. This is strictly a housekeeping measure, town officials pointed out, and involves the district's money merely passing through town books.

operation, which would allow the Bethel factory to turn out completed garments. Presently the garments produced in Bethel are returned to the factory in Berlin, N.H., for finishing.
Sources said the building would possibly be erected by Schlavi Homes, of Oxford, and would possibly be financed by the Bethel Savings Bank.
The Bethel Board of Selectmen, which has been conducting its sessions on the proposed sale or lease of the airport land in secret, reportedly made an offer to the Gamm officials late last week to sell them two lots. Sources said Gamm officials responded with a counter-proposal.
The Board of Selectmen, following another secret session Monday night, approved Gamm's offer to purchase two lots at the industrial park for $25,000, plus up to $3,000 to bring in town water. As of yesterday, no agreement had been signed between the company and town officials pending clarification of details in the sale.
If the deal is finalized—and indications are that it will be by the end of the week—Gamm would become the first tenant in the industrial park. However, they would not be the first to plan a venture in that area. Two years ago, Bob Saunders put a deposit on one of the lots, hoping someday to start a flight service operation there.
The price for a lot, at the time he put his deposit down, was $10,000. Mr. Saunders said he was dismayed to learn that the selectmen were negotiating with Gamm on the lot he already had his deposit down on. This snafu was later cleared up, with Gamm being offered a different lot, Mr. Saunders said.
Others who placed money down on airport lots were Jim Delamater, Les Otten, and Dick Rason, though none apparently had specific plans for their lots—and it is not clear that they actually would have completed purchase of them.
Sources said town officials have been working hard to come up with a deal that will keep Gamm in town. With 60 local employees working at the factory, town officials do not want to see the factory relocate to Rumford or some other town, the sources said.

Clark Street residents Bob and Linda Saunders registered a strong complaint against what they termed excessive noise coming from the new subterranean lounge at The Sudbury Inn. The Saunders asked the board to revoke the amusement permit that allows music and dancing at the establishment, which is just across the street from them.
The board listened to arguments from the Saunders as well as rebuttals from Cheri and David Thurston—owners of The Sudbury Inn. Meanwhile, the town manager is seeking advice from the Maine Municipal Association on what would constitute a valid reason for revoking an amusement permit. Board Chairman Arlan Jodrey told the Saunders and Thurstons, "We will not be making a hasty decision on this." The board acknowledged receipt of the Saunders' letter but took no other action.
The board granted a sewer tie-in permit to Joe and Catherine Galdis for Martha's Restaurant. The Galdises plan to enlarge the restaurant and add a second story. To improve the sewer situation, they plan to disconnect from the Clark Street line and reconnect on the Main Street line.
The board also granted a sewer tie-in permit to Leslie Bailey, who wants to connect to the Vernon Street sewer from his property on that street. The approval was made with the proviso that he put up $400 as a guarantee that the street will be closed up properly after the connection is made.
The selectmen accepted the low bid of Ralph Merrill for hauling sludge material from the Town of Bethel and SAD #44 wastewater treatment facilities. The bid was .024/gallon.
The selectmen began interviewing for a replacement school director to the SAD #44 Board of Directors to replace Kay Chadbourne, who resigned earlier this summer. Jeri Brooks was interviewed Monday night. Chairman Jodrey said the board will make a decision at its next meeting, after interviewing any additional candidates for the position.

The board also granted a sewer tie-in permit to Leslie Bailey, who wants to connect to the Vernon Street sewer from his property on that street. The approval was made with the proviso that he put up $400 as a guarantee that the street will be closed up properly after the connection is made.
The selectmen accepted the low bid of Ralph Merrill for hauling sludge material from the Town of Bethel and SAD #44 wastewater treatment facilities. The bid was .024/gallon.
The selectmen began interviewing for a replacement school director to the SAD #44 Board of Directors to replace Kay Chadbourne, who resigned earlier this summer. Jeri Brooks was interviewed Monday night. Chairman Jodrey said the board will make a decision at its next meeting, after interviewing any additional candidates for the position.

Clark Street residents Bob and Linda Saunders registered a strong complaint against what they termed excessive noise coming from the new subterranean lounge at The Sudbury Inn. The Saunders asked the board to revoke the amusement permit that allows music and dancing at the establishment, which is just across the street from them.
The board listened to arguments from the Saunders as well as rebuttals from Cheri and David Thurston—owners of The Sudbury Inn. Meanwhile, the town manager is seeking advice from the Maine Municipal Association on what would constitute a valid reason for revoking an amusement permit. ## Old school became outmoded

The information I'm going to give you has been gleaned from nearly a half-century of involvement with the Woodstock School—first as a beginning teacher, then as a mother of three children educated there, then as a grandmother of three who have passed through the school and on to Telstar, and for 10 years as a member of the Board of Directors of SAD #44. What changes have taken place in society and education during these years!

The buildings that make up the old Woodstock School complex were developed in stages as need arose. The original main building was built about 70 years ago. An addition which brought it to its present size was soon added. The gymnasium was constructed in the early '30s by a W.P.A. crew—nearly all of the work being done by hand. The final building—now known as the annex—was built to house the shop for the high school industrial arts program.

My first introduction to the Woodstock School was in 1941. I was hired to teach Grades 5 and 6. There were about 70 elementary children. Each of four rooms housed two grades—kindergarten children were with 1st and 2nd grade students. At that time there was the main building looking much as it does today, and the gym. This facility served the needs of students from K to 12. Little thought was given to fuel bills as wood and coal were cheap and in ample supply. The windows rattled and the rooms were drafty. Ventilation was regulated by constantly adjusting the double window system. There was storage space in the attic, and the basement housed vehicles and supplies. Grades K-8 were on the present 2nd floor and Grades 9-12 on the 3rd floor.

The floors were treated with oil, which protected the boards and kept the dust down. Water came from a spring off the grounds. The supply was at times inadequate. There was the ever-present danger of fire. The playground was small, but there were few buses—the staff walked to work, so parking was not a problem.

The high school shop, such as it was, was in one section of the basement, until the new shop was built in the '50s. Just prior to the formation of SAD #44, the school became very crowded as more and more Bethel area students were enrolling in Woodstock High. After the construction of Telstar Regional High School, the building housed just Grades K-6. The shop became classrooms. The 3rd floor area was cut up into smaller instructional areas.

In 1983 the top floor was closed to pupil use, as it was difficult to evacuate grade school children in case of disaster. This solved a safety problem but created a space problem.

Basically the original structures remain the same, at least, in outward appearance. The buildings have been

New school presents opportunities

The beginning of the 1987-1988 school year will certainly be an exciting one for the community of Woodstock. Children and staff alike are eagerly looking forward to their first year in the new facility located on Rumford Avenue in Bryant Pond. For the first time, children will be able to do research projects in a fully equipped library, eat their lunches in a cafeteria and have music and physical education classes in the main building, without having to don boots and coats to journey to another building a hundred yards away. Thanks to the addition of a small room for group work, specialists in the building will no longer be forced to vie for a corner of a hallway to service their students. The emphasis on good acoustics means that parents and friends can relax in the multipurpose room with straining to hear each word spoken in a play or special presentation. A well equipped playground and ballfield complement the school. Equipment for all ages is easily seen from Rumford Avenue.

An excellent teaching staff and a fine group of children make up the nucleus of the school. Woodstock is indeed fortunate to have the caliber of teachers that are presently on staff. They include: Robin Smith, Kindergarten teacher; Jolene Shirmamura, Grade 2; Jacqueline Morin, Grade 3; Melanie Ellsworth, Grade 4; Floris Robin, Grade 5; Christopher Szente, Grade 6; Bernice Caddigan, Resource Room; Kathleen Conrad, Chapter 1; and Marie Hickey, Composite Room. Instructional aides include Patricia Whitman, Resource Room; Wanda Johnson, Grade 1; Sonja Davis, Grade 2; Helen Manjourides, Composite Room; and Paula Smith, Library Aide. Completing the staff are Queda Billings, secretary; Ray Robert, custodian; and cafeteria workers Elizabeth Duguay and Eleanor Farnum.

It is our hope that the new school will continue to receive the tremendous amount of community support that has been so evident in recent years. A drive to raise funds for books for the new school library ended this past June with well over $2,000 worth of books and donations received. "A Ripple In the Pond," an innovative grant from the state in the 1985-1986 school year included special evening presentations of seven different artists. These events were extremely well attended. This past year, the Woodstock staff and the Woodstock Parent Teachers Organization coordinated "Woodstock Week," a week of events designed to "say good-bye" to the old school and welcome the new facility. Hundreds of local people attended the many events which included a tour of the new school for both students and parents, a sixth grade musical, a school-wide production on highlights of education during the past 70 years, a special luncheon for former Woodstock staff, parent-student softball game, and a school wide Field Day. The week culminated with a Community insulated as much as can be done in an old wooden structure, but with so much glass, there is tremendous heat loss.

Many starts have been made to do something about the Woodstock School. There is a thick file in Augusta of studies and applications that various school boards have participated in filing with the state board concerning the inadequacies of the old school complex.

In 1981 the SAD #4 school board decided to put words into action. Much effort was put into research to decide what the action should be. Some alternatives to a new building were retrofitting the buildings for energy efficiency; major renovations to update the facility; expanding the present lot; keeping the complex as is, or rebuilding on site.

As each new idea was studied, it was cast aside as either physically impossible or financially unfeasible. The boundaries of this school site are unique. Directly behind the building is steep ledge of rock. At either end is brook and swampland. In the front is the Baptist Church and parsonage and a private dwelling. The board members became convinced that the only reasonable solution to the many problems was to replace the existing buildings with a new one on a suitable location. The state board was not only receptive but placed the project as number-two on their priority list of new construction at their July 1982 meeting. It was obvious to us who were members of the local board at that time that the project would benefit the taxpayers by the realization of savings in fuel bills, in maintenance costs, and especially in renovation costs. Although Woodstock voters passed the referendum by a vote of 251-186, it was defeated by other towns in the district. The final vote was 1,055 "for" and 1,235 "against." The project was defeated, but the problems remained.

The board considered trying again the next July, but made a decision to wait until February. Our superintendent resigned. There was no state money for us in February. The board decided to place the project on the back burner for awhile and wait a more appropriate time to reactivate it. In 1984, our attempts were again thwarted when the state board placed several other projects ahead of ours. 1985 seemed to be the time to venture forth. We again waded through the maze of red tape to get the project going. We attempted to understand why the voters had rejected the project previously and to correct misinformation that seemed to be floating about. The state board again was receptive and voted to give approval to the concept.

Eva B. Twitchell

With strong support from parent groups from all the district schools, voters—in 1985—overwhelmingly approved the concept (and indebtedness) for the new Woodstock School. Total cost was $1.482 million, 54 percent of which is to be paid for by the state.

BREAKING GROUND FOR THE NEW SCHOOL took place on June 11, 1986, and was a team effort by administrators, school board members and contractors. The students (and parents) looked on happily.

A USER-FRIENDLY PLAYGROUND is just one of the many nice things about the new school.

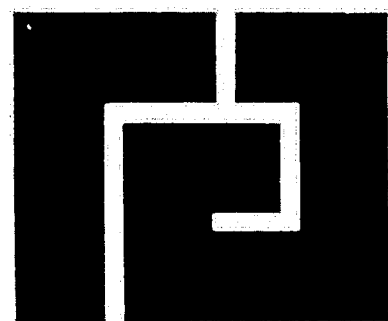

Calling the students in from recess was a job for teacher aide Wanda Johnson with her handbell. The bell will be used at the new school, as well.

Carnival which drew over 1,000 people.

An active and dedicated parent group has provided an additional, important dimension to the Woodstock School. The new building itself is a tribute to their efforts. For several years, the organization worked diligently to help assure the passage of the referendum to approve the new school. In addition, the W.P.T.O. has developed a yearly schedule that includes such events as an annual evening Halloween Party and a "Breakfast With Santa Claus." Last year, when budget cuts eliminated all fund for field trips, the W.P.T.O. quickly voted to provide full transportation costs to all classes so these important and educational field trips could continue. Currently, a subcommittee is working to raise funds to provide additional equipment for the playground.

Thanks to the commitment of dozens of parents and the efforts of Jolene Shimamura and Helen Mar-Jourides, the Woodstock School can now boast of having an outstanding School Volunteer Program. Last year, well over 30 parents and interested community members visited the school on a weekly basis to work with individual classroom teachers and students. Many more people volunteered their services for special projects and events. Our goal this year is to continue this fine program in the classrooms and extend it to the new library. We hope that, with the help of trained volunteers, we can utilize our library facilities throughout the entire week.

Academically, the children of the Woodstock School enjoy a fine reputation. Each year, many students are recognized at the regional, state, or national level through their success in a variety of academic contests. At the building level, students reap the benefits of a staff that works well together. Intergrade projects are a common sight. Last year, for example, the kindergarten and first grade students worked together on a Thanksgiving project designed to heighten their understanding of that holiday. With the help and cooperation of the teachers and parents, they then invited students from the Andover Elementary School to dress as Indians and travel to Woodstock to join them for a Thanksgiving Feast. The resulting banquet solidified their understanding of the meaning of the holiday.

When cuts in the budget resulted in the elimination of all elementary athletic programs, the staff realized the effects these cuts would have on the children and quickly volunteered their time so their students would not have to go without these programs. As a result, Woodstock students enjoyed a complete athletic program.

The staff has also received its share of accolades. Jolene Shimamura is currently a semi-finalist for Maine "Teacher of the Year." I was also privileged to be selected as Maine Elementary Principal of the Year/National Distinguished Principal. In addition the office receives many letters each year praising the efforts of our staff.

The Woodstock School, as all other schools in SAD #44, also benefits from having a Superintendent of Schools and a Board of Directors who have the ability to recognize the need for constant curriculum review and provide necessary funds for that cause. SAD #44's Academic Standards Steering Committee was a pioneer committee in the State of Maine. Today, many school districts are beginning to establish similar committees. SAD #44's has been operating successfully for a half dozen years.

In closing, I must state my feeling that the Woodstock School is a very special place for children to learn and grow. The students are respectful and appreciative and, as a group, possess a sense of caring that is most evident to anyone who enters the building. Children's songwriter Rick Charette has often told me that he considers the Woodstock School a "unique and special place."

As my earlier comments indicate, I am most impressed with the dedication and commitment of the Woodstock staff. I would doubt that few schools in any state could boast of having such a concerned, energetic and professional group of individuals. They have made, and will continue to make, the difference.

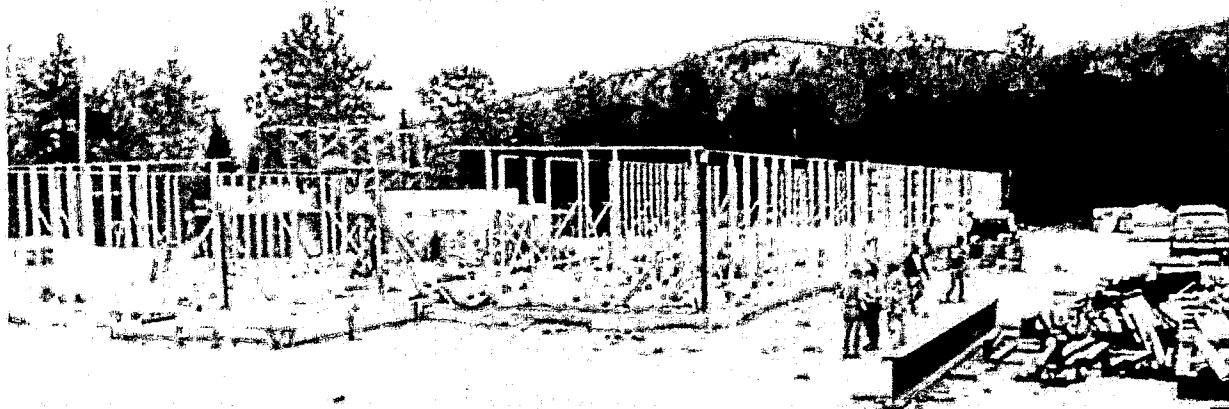

The W.P.T.O. and Volunteer Group reflect the positive attitude that is so prevalent in the community. Woodstock, as I have said so many times before, is blessed by having "all the right ingredients" for quality education.

Finally, the new school, is meant to be a true community school and I would urge the members of the community to use it to its fullest potential. To quote a familiar saying, "There are no strangers here, only friends we have not met yet."

RICE - SNYDER

Miss Louise Mae Snyder of West Bethel and William Todd Rice, Bethel, exchanged marriage vows in an afternoon double ring ceremony performed by Rev. Norman Rust on July 11, 1987, at the West Bethel Union Church.

The bride wore a full length Victorian style gown with short sleeves, and carried a cascading bouquet of carnations and pink roses. Tracy Ross of West Bethel, a friend of the bride, was her maid of honor, and Steve Carter of East Bethel, friend of the bridegroom, served as best man.

Mrs. Rice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald E. Snyder of West and is a 1987 graduate of Telstar Regional High School. She has employment at GMM II in Bethel. Mr. Rice, son of Mr. and Mrs. Burnham W. Rice of Bethel, is a graduate of Telstar Regional High School with the class of 1984 and is employed as a delivery truck driver for Western Maine Supply Co. in Bethel.

They are residing at their home on Tyler Street, Bethel.

Festive family evening of American music
at Upson Playhouse

At 7:30 Saturday evening, Aug. 29, there will be music for the whole family in the gardens of The Hammons House and The Upson Playhouse on Broad Street, Bethel. Northfield, an eight member vocal group from the foothills of western Maine will perform "Now I Walk in Beauty: A History of American Music" by torchlight.

Suitable for all ages, audience members are invited to bring blankets and picnics to enjoy prior to the performance in the beautiful gardens and grounds of The Hammons House. The event will be held rain or shine!

Now I Walk in Beauty is the title of a Navajo prayer and that song opens the program, which then continues to explore our American musical experience up to the present. Jim LeFurgy, a member of Northfield, states that "In exploring our own musical heritage, we become the Indian asked to plow his sacred earth, the colonist, first on his perilous ocean journey, then in his church seeking meaning for his hardship. We become the slave in the cotton field, and the modern teenager, free from school in the summer. We use pantomime, poetry, storytelling and dance to take this music out of its dry text and to show how it was woven into the fabric of our lives."

Northfield will sing the following songs, plus some selections from their other shows: "Now I Walk in Beauty," "It Was a Lover and His Lass," "New Britain," "Babel Streams," "Reflection," "Northfield," "Wondrous Love," "Young Man," "Here Comes Zodiack" (a song and a dance), "Summertime."

Group members of Northfield are Peter Thompson, Alena Blakesley, Barbara Koertge, Peter Cook, Carol Hedden, Dan Woodward, Deborah LeFurgy, and James LeFurgy.

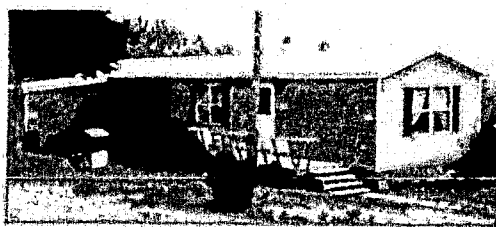

The program will be one hour in length. Tickets are: adults, $4; children, $2. Call 824-3170 for advance tickets and reservations.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, is endeavoring to bring frequently to you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words, comfort and help for your daily life.

August is the month when we harvest the fruits of our labors. Our gardens, the farmers' hay fields, the orchardists' apple trees—their yields all bear witness to the fertilization and tending of the months before harvest. "As we sow, so shall we reap" seems painted in living color in every roadside stand these August days.

We extend that pattern of careful preparation leading to a hoped-for conclusion to many parts of our lives. Responsible work in high school prepares us for academic success in college. Tinkering with the family car leads to more formal work which produces a competent mechanic. We're used to taking things into our own hands and taking steps we believe are necessary to insure success.

How odd that Jesus tells us the kingdom of heaven doesn't happen that way! The "Kingdom Parables" in Mark tell us that we can't use our usual ways of looking at things to tell us about the Kingdom. Someone scatters seed and while that person sleeps, the seed grows. The mustard seed, smallest of all, gives rise to the tallest plant. We can't tell what God is doing, where God is at work bringing the Kingdom of shalom—of justice, love and peace—to fruition.

Does that make you nervous? Are we uneasy with things we can't control, with events that don't depend on our careful planning and preparation? How can we handle this way of way of being God's servants? What are we to do? What Jesus seemed to mean was not that we have no part to play in the bringing in of the Kingdom, but rather that we would not determine its coming. That the Kingdom is God's work should give us great hope—first, because we need not be dismayed because our efforts seem in vain. Probably the best way to play our parts in that great work is to work as if all depended on us, and to pray as if all depended on God.

Rotary Club notes

Gary Guimond, the public affairs officer of the Boise Cascade mill in Rumford, was the guest speaker at the weekly Rotary Club breakfast meeting Tuesday, at Martha's Restaurant.

Mr. Guimond told the Rotarians that the mill is running at full capacity these days, turning out 1,450 tons of paper every day. He said the paper—70 percent of which is coated stock—is the highest quality the mill has ever produced and customer complaints are minimal. On the state-of-the-art #15 papermaking machine, there was only a total of 30 minutes of production turned back by unhappy customers, he reported.

He credited much of the improved efficiency at the mill to the new contract signed last September after an unsuccessful three-month strike by the United Paperworkers local. The contract allows management to use workers where they are needed, regardless of the specific job they are hired to do. Mr. Guimond said this has cut maintenance costs by $1 million in a year's time. Whereas any problem with a machine used to have to be taken care of by a specific employee, with the new contract any qualified employee can help get a machine running again. "Our [papermaking] people are doing more maintenance now," he said.

He said the market for paper is a buyer's market, which is why Boise was so intent on cutting costs in its new contract with the paperworkers. He said there is overproduction because of increased efficiency among American mills, and there is also foreign competition. The two conditions combined to cause prices to stagnate. He said prices are at 1979 levels for the coated papers produced at the Rumford mill, despite the fact that the quality of the papers being produced is constantly being upgraded.

But low prices aren't the main worry of Boise and the other Maine paper mills. "The issue that's haunting the paper industry [in Maine]," Mr. Guimond said, "is wood supply." He said unless the woodlots are very well managed, there

TELSTAR FIELD HOCKEY
SQUAD HOLDING PRACTICES

The Telstar field hockey team is holding practices Monday through Friday, 8-10 a.m. All interested players should attend.

The following scrimmages have been scheduled: Saturday, Aug. 22, home with Fryeburg, 10:30 a.m.; Wednesday, Aug. 26, away at Saco, 2 p.m.; Tuesday, Sept. 1, away at Berlin, 3:30 p.m.

A play-day is also being scheduled for Monday, Aug. 24, at Bonny Eagle High School, Buxton. There will be buses for away games. All players should plan to attend the scrimmages and play-day. Any questions, call Coach Scott, 824-3127.

will be a shortage of spruce and fir by the turn of the century.

Mr. Guimond noted the dismal portrait painted of Rumford by the "Today" show last February in NBC's look at the aftermath of the strike. He said following the airing of the show, community leaders have been getting together to plan for the future. He said Boise is doing its part to heal the effects of the strike, by sponsoring softball and golf tournaments, by giving scholarships to graduating seniors, and by conducting forestry tours.

Of the 342 union workers displaced by new workers during last summer's strike, many have returned to the mill as the result of fresh vacancies. Others have taken different jobs or gone into business, he said. Of the original number, just 150 remain waiting to get back into the mill, he said. They are being kept on a priority hiring list. Total employment at the mill is currently 1,750, including hourly and salaried employees, he said.

Responding to a question about the sulfur odor that comes from the mill, Mr. Guimond said it has been lowered from what it was previously and is within federal standards. He said it would be extremely costly to remove the remaining small quantities of sulfur dioxide from the smokestack emissions. Nevertheless, he said, the company does continue to look for a process that would do just that.

WALKING WITH JESUS CHRIST
A parable of a country Church mouse

Once upon a time—a mouse and Satan discussed their favorite foods. The mouse pronounced his preference for seeds, some vegetables and fruit. Satan said he wasn't much for vegetables, favoring fruit and seeds—the kind Christians planted. Matthew 13

Well, Mr. Mouse who had heard of Murphy's Law—"that if there was a possibility of something to go wrong—it would,"—took a step or two back—he wasn't to be trapped—fidgeted a bit nervously—as if he were "testing the waters"—asked—what were these fruits?

Well, it was here that pussy foot, sneak about Satan—glanced very carefully over his shoulder—took great gulps—as if he was taking Castor Oil—whispered "Fruits of the Spirit"—whereupon he quickly washed his mouth out with soap, not the nice smelly kind—guess he threw a few sparks too!

Now then, Mr. Mouse had heard somewhere—that Satan, also called the devil—was the chief of all liars—said to him: "I could eat up a whole box of apples if I had the time." Whereupon the "angel of the bottomless pit" laughed—I guess you would say—he snarled—replied—I would rather take a little nibble now and then—and replace it with something else so it wouldn't be missed.

Then it was that Mr. Mouse—you see, he was a poor country Church mouse—that loved the warm spot in the wood pile at the wood stove—remembered hearing the Preacher preaching on Church order and discipline—that a shift away or erring from the faith—James 1:15—would lead to sin and worse yet. But what was it that Satan meant the nine kinds of fruit—so that he could eat some also.

So, he waited awhile as the Preacher described the fruit—oh, 'twas not mouse edible—but what were they! Then he understood—they are—"love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness, self control and patience too. Galatians 5:22

So, that was it—he, Satan would nibble at these and replace them—bit by bit—painlessly with such things as—"envy, provoking, jealousy, conceit, strife, vain babblings, wrath and even hatred." Oh, but the mouse was so frightened and about to run out, when suddenly the Word of God reached the heart of the people, they were touched and repented, asking forgiveness of their sin—Mr. Mouse stayed to hear the shouts of joy and happiness—nobody noticed that the wood stove fire had gone out—that frost came upon the windows—because their hearts were warm.

The evil one departed in a rage! "like a roaring lion, seeking whom he might devour."

"Submit yourselves, therefore, to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you."

James 4:7

And, as Paul wrote ending his letters to Timothy, "The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen"

Caribou at UMO healthy and well

After a summer in the public limelight under the curious watch of more than 20,000 visitors, the adult woodland caribou at the University of Maine, Orono, are healthy and well, according to wildlife biologist Mark McCollough.

The University Caribou Research Facility will be open to the public on Aug. 22-23, Sept. 12 and Sept. 26 from noon to 4 p.m. The facility will be closed in October during the breeding season. Parking is available behind the Hilltop Complex, and special arrangements can be made for the disabled and elderly between noon and 1 p.m. on visiting days.

The 11 calves born this spring have increased Maine's caribou herd to 33 animals—20 does, 11 calves and two stags. The calves, now weighing 60-70 pounds, have shed their light tan baby fur and sport thin black summer coats, just like their mothers. The summer coat is very thin, which helps the caribou deal with the summer heat and humidity.

Like deer and moose, caribou and reindeer, the calves, at 2½ months old, have a fully developed rumen and are able to eat a diet of special grains and forage. Although it is no longer necessary, they continue to try to nurse their mothers. Any doe that permits her calf to suckle soon finds herself surrounded by other hungry calves, all pushing and shoving for their share of the rich milk.

Seven of the 11 calves are male, and already are growing their first set of antlers. Right now they are just stubs on the top of the head, but will grow to six to eight inches long by late fall.

There is a special bond between the does and their calves, and they can now recognize each other by sound. A calf will stand bleating in the pasture in search of its mother who will grunt a response until they find one another. This strong bond will remain for a full year until the next calving season. It is during this time that young caribou learn the migratory traditions necessary for their survival.

The following spring, the female drives away its yearling in preparation for a similar bond with her new calf.

Caribou are not a prolific species. Female calves do not mature to breeding age until three years old, and they give birth to only single calf each year.

The two stags now both sport a tremendous set of antlers. Lowell, the largest stag weighing about 450 pounds, has a rare "double shovel" set of antlers. Less than 10 percent of the males in a herd have both of the brow lines, or "shovels" extending over the nose, enlarged and palmate. Amazingly, both shovels intertwine their palmate points but do not grow together.

Since late March, their antlers have been growing at a rate of almost a half inch a day. They now rise almost three feet in height in a graceful sweep over their head. The antlers are now completely grown, and the stags will soon rub off the velvet covering in preparation for rutting season in October. Stags use their antlers to fight off other males for a harem of eight to 20 does during the breeding season.

In the last century, caribou were plentiful and roamed the vast wilderness of northern Maine. But because of man's interference, they were over-hunted and
